

OpenShift AI Notebook Validation Guide

OpenShift AI provides a platform for developing, training, and deploying machine learning models. A notebook runner executes generated notebooks in an isolated Kubernetes environment. For a connected cluster, package and model dependencies may be downloaded from external sources. The runner job requires access to the configured object store, model endpoints, and other resources.